All success begins with having an affordable place to call home, but past policy decisions have led to sky-high rents and housing prices that are dragging down Washingtonians who are trying to make ends meet and lead successful lives.

Public outcry is growing for Washington's elected leaders to enact bold policy solutions to solve the housing crisis. This is where you come in. We need dedicated people like you to help fight for housing justice.

what we do

ENGAGE WITH COMMUNITIES ACROSS WA

RAP is holding a listening tour across Washington during the summer of 2017 to invite more communities into our work. Visit bit.ly/rapsunmit to RSVP!

IDENTIFY AND DEVELOP LEADERS

We hold periodic trainings for our members to develop leadership skills. Go to residentactionproject.org to download our organizer toolkit.

ORGANIZE TO FIND SOLUTIONS

We organize for policies that move us closer to housing justice.

why we do it

People directly impacted by systemic injustices are purposefully left out of decision making. Ultimately, they should be leading the charge for change. As the movement advances to make housing more affordable in Washington, RAP will be at the forefront. We are educated on the intersectionality of housing and homelessness issues, registered to vote, and pushing to hold lawmakers accountable for their actions.

The people living in the approximately 118,000 subsidized homes in WA represent a powerful political force. We are here to strengthen the movement for everyone to have access to safe, healthy, affordable homes.
