

The Resident Action Project is a network led by people who have experienced housing injustice. Together we're building power to change state policy through storytelling, organizing, and civic action.

The Resident Action Project is exactly what it sounds like: people coming together to take action on affordable housing and homelessness issues. RAP is comprised of current residents of affordable housing communities, direct service providers and frontline staff, people seeking affordable homes, and community organizers.

Our goals:

- 1) Advance legislation that increases access to affordable homes and creates solutions to end homelessness; and
- 2) Build a base of resident power and develop leadership among residents.

Get involved!

Be part of the year-round cycle of advocacy, including voter engagement, meeting with lawmakers during legislative session and in the interim, and community building and education. We have many opportunities to get involved, and our base is growing in new parts of the state. Join us for an upcoming community meeting, training, or outreach event; help get an organizing committee off the ground in your area; join a RAP delegation at the annual Housing and Homelessness Advocacy Day in February or the Conference on Ending Homelessness in May; or come to RAP's statewide summit for homes in the fall!

Contact Nick Wood at nickw@wliha.org or 206-442-9455 x 203 to get on the mailing list or to get more information! There are constantly new things happening with the Resident Action Project, and email is the quickest way to receive those updates.